

Introduction: Your Transformation Journey

Welcome to the Real Life Leadership Training – 7 Areas of Transformation Assessment. This report is the beginning of a 40-day journey that will help you discover who you truly are, where you are right now, and where God is calling you to go. This is not a test with right or wrong answers. It is a mirror — an honest, compassionate look at seven dimensions of your life that shape who you are becoming.

Three Foundation Questions

Before your full assessment, every journey begins with three defining questions. These mirror the question God asked Adam in the Garden of Eden — not because He did not know the answer, but because He wanted Adam to become honest about his own reality. These questions create the gap — the space between where you are and where you could be.

01Where are you?

This question looks at your current reality — your home, your habits, your hopes, and your hurts. Like God asking Adam in the Garden, this is not a question of geography but of honesty. Where are you, really?

02Who told you?

Every young person is shaped by voices — parents, peers, culture, media, pain, and experience. Some of those voices have told you truth. Others have given you a false identity. This question helps us identify which voices are guiding your life — and whether they deserve that authority.

03What have you done?

This question is not about guilt — it is about direction. What decisions have you made so far? What path are you currently on? Are you moving toward your purpose or away from it? Honest reflection here creates the foundation for real change.

● FAMILY

Score: 14/25

Progress:

14/25

MODERATE

Family is the first school of life. For teenagers aged 13–17, the family environment shapes identity, emotional security, communication skills, and core values. This domain explores the quality of your home environment — whether you feel heard, supported, and loved, or whether you navigate pain, absence, or dysfunction in silence.

Assessment Questions

Q1	How well do you feel understood and supported by your family?
	1 — I feel completely alone; no one understands me
	2 — Rarely understood; communication is difficult
	3 — Sometimes supported, but there are gaps
	4 — Mostly supported with occasional misunderstanding
	5 — Fully supported; open communication and love at home
Q2	How stable and consistent is your home environment?
	1 — Very unstable; frequent conflict or crisis
	2 — Often tense or unpredictable
	3 — Somewhat stable with some difficult moments
	4 — Generally stable with minor tensions
	5 — Very stable, peaceful, and consistent
Q3	Are both parents (or primary caregivers) present and active in your life?
	1 — No caregivers present; I live independently or with others
	2 — One caregiver, largely absent or disengaged
	3 — One caregiver present and somewhat involved
	4 — Both present but one less engaged
	5 — Both present, actively involved and supportive
Q4	How freely can you share your feelings, struggles, or dreams at home?
	1 — Not at all; sharing leads to conflict or dismissal
	2 — Rarely; I keep most things to myself
	3 — Occasionally, in safe moments
	4 — Mostly; my family listens
	5 — Completely freely; my home is a safe place to share
Q5	How much do the values and habits of your family positively shape your life?
	1 — Negative habits dominate; I struggle with their influence

2 — More harmful than helpful influences
3 — Mixed; some good, some harmful patterns
4 — Mostly positive values and role models
5 — Strong, godly values are consistently modelled at home

Your Result:
MODERATE

You have some support at home but face real gaps. With intentional effort and the right mentors, your family environment can become a stronger foundation. Focus on communication and identifying one trusted adult to confide in.

Next Step:

Identify one area of tension in your family and commit to a weekly intentional conversation. If home is painful, identify one trusted adult outside the home to mentor you through this season.

● FINANCE

Score: 11/25

Progress:

11/25

LOW

Financial wisdom is a life skill rarely taught in schools but critical for independence. In developing-country contexts, families often carry generational debt, borrowing habits, and financial anxiety. This domain explores your current understanding of money, saving, generosity, and the financial values you have inherited — and whether they are building you up or holding you back.

Assessment Questions

Q1 How well do you understand where money comes from and how it should be managed?

- 1 — I have no idea how finances work
- 2 — I know a little but money confuses me
- 3 — I understand basics but lack a clear plan
- 4 — I understand finances and practise some discipline
- 5 — I actively manage money with a clear plan and biblical values

Q2 How do the financial habits of your family affect your daily life?

- 1 — We are in serious debt or poverty; it affects everything
- 2 — Financial stress is frequent and affects my wellbeing
- 3 — We manage but it is a constant effort
- 4 — We are mostly stable with occasional financial pressure
- 5 — We are financially disciplined and generous

Q3 Do you have a habit of saving, even small amounts?

- 1 — Never; I spend everything I receive
- 2 — Rarely; saving feels impossible
- 3 — Sometimes when I remember or have extra
- 4 — Mostly; I try to put something aside regularly
- 5 — Always; saving is a non-negotiable habit for me

Q4 Do you understand the danger of borrowing without a plan to repay?

- 1 — No; borrowing seems normal and fine
- 2 — I have heard it is risky but do not fully understand
- 3 — I understand somewhat and try to avoid unnecessary debt
- 4 — I am cautious about debt and think before borrowing
- 5 — Fully aware; I avoid unplanned debt and teach others the same

Q5 Do you believe in giving a portion of what you earn to God and others?

1 — No; I need all I have for myself
2 — I would like to give but rarely do
3 — I give occasionally when I feel I can afford it
4 — I give regularly even if it is a small amount
5 — Giving is a core value; I tithe and serve with what I have

Your Result:
LOW

Your financial foundation needs urgent attention. You may have inherited harmful money habits from your family or environment. The good news: you can break the cycle now. Begin with one simple habit — save something, no matter how small, every week.

Next Step:

Start a simple notebook or app to record every rupee that comes in and goes out for 30 days. Identify one financial habit in your family that you want to change and commit to living differently.

● GOVERNMENT & ENVIRONMENT

Score: 13/25

Progress:

13/25

MODERATE

Every person lives within a system — a city, a school, a nation. Understanding how those systems work, where they are broken, and how to navigate them with integrity is a leadership skill. In contexts where corruption and injustice are common, this domain helps you understand your rights, your responsibilities, and your role in being part of the solution — not the problem.

Assessment Questions

Q1 How aware are you of the laws, rules, and systems that govern your community?

- 1 — Not at all aware; I have never thought about it
- 2 — Very little awareness
- 3 — Some awareness; I know basic rules
- 4 — Fairly aware and generally follow the rules
- 5 — Very aware and actively engaged as a responsible citizen

Q2 How do corruption or injustice in your environment affect your daily life?

- 1 — Deeply; it causes serious harm to my family or me
- 2 — Frequently; it limits opportunities for us
- 3 — Sometimes; I notice its effects but manage
- 4 — Rarely; my environment is mostly fair
- 5 — Minimally; I live in a relatively just environment

Q3 Do you take responsibility for your behaviour in school, community, and home?

- 1 — Rarely; I blame others when things go wrong
- 2 — Sometimes, but mostly avoid responsibility
- 3 — Moderately; I try but struggle with accountability
- 4 — Mostly responsible and accountable
- 5 — Fully; I own my actions and encourage others to do the same

Q4 Do you see yourself as someone who can influence or improve your environment?

- 1 — No; systems are too big and I am too small
- 2 — Unlikely; I feel powerless most of the time
- 3 — Possibly; I have some ideas but am not sure
- 4 — Yes; I am beginning to lead in small ways
- 5 — Absolutely; I actively seek to be a positive influence

Q5 How do you respond when you see injustice or wrong behaviour around you?

- 1 — I ignore it or join in to survive

2 — I feel uncomfortable but do nothing
3 — I sometimes speak up or walk away
4 — I usually stand for what is right, even if it costs me
5 — I consistently stand for justice and truth with courage

Your Result:
MODERATE

You are developing civic awareness and a sense of responsibility. Continue growing in courage to stand for what is right. Find mentors who model integrity in difficult environments.

Next Step:

Choose one rule or responsibility in your school or community that you will uphold with excellence this month. Practise integrity even when no one is watching.

● SPIRITUALITY

Score: 16/25

Progress:

16/25

MODERATE

Every human being was created by God with a spiritual dimension. This domain explores your relationship with your Creator — whether you are growing in faith, practising spiritual disciplines, and living according to your values. Spirituality is not religion for its own sake. It is the foundation of identity, purpose, and character. Based on biblical principles, we explore where you are in your journey with God and how that shapes who you are becoming.

Assessment Questions

Q1	How would you describe your personal relationship with God today?
	1 — I do not believe in or think about God
	2 — I am aware of God but have no real personal connection
	3 — I believe but my relationship is inconsistent
	4 — I have a growing, active relationship with God
	5 — My relationship with God is the foundation of my life
Q2	How consistently do you practise spiritual habits (prayer, reading Scripture, worship)?
	1 — Never; I have no spiritual practices
	2 — Rarely; only in times of crisis
	3 — Occasionally; not a regular habit yet
	4 — Regularly, several times a week
	5 — Daily; spiritual disciplines are a non-negotiable part of my life
Q3	How well do your daily actions reflect your spiritual values?
	1 — My actions rarely reflect what I believe
	2 — There is a large gap between what I believe and how I live
	3 — I am working on alignment but inconsistent
	4 — Mostly consistent; I try to live what I believe
	5 — My life consistently reflects the fruit of the Spirit
Q4	Have you identified a spiritual gift or calling in your life?
	1 — No; I have never thought about this
	2 — I have wondered but have no clarity
	3 — I have some ideas but need guidance
	4 — I have identified my gifts and am beginning to develop them
	5 — Clear calling and actively growing in it with accountability
Q5	How connected are you to a faith community (church, Bible study, prayer group)?

1 — Not connected at all
2 — I attend occasionally but am not engaged
3 — I attend regularly but am not deeply involved
4 — Actively involved and growing in community
5 — Deeply rooted; I serve, lead, and am accountable in my faith community

Your Result:
MODERATE

You have a faith foundation but it is not yet fully shaping your daily life. Consistency is key. Choose one spiritual discipline to practise daily this week and find one person to walk this journey with you.

Next Step:

Commit to 10 minutes of prayer and Scripture reading every morning for 40 days. Journal what God is speaking to you. Find an accountability partner to share your journey.

● TALENT

Score: 18/25

Progress:

18/25

HIGH

God placed a unique gift inside every human being before they were born. Your talent is not an accident — it is a calling. This domain helps you discover, define, and develop the gifts God has placed inside you. Whether it is music, sport, business, teaching, technology, or the arts — every gift must be cultivated with discipline and intention. We also explore whether you are developing your own dream or living someone else's.

Assessment Questions

Q1	Have you identified your core natural gift or talent?
	1 — No; I have no idea what I am good at
	2 — I have some guesses but no real clarity
	3 — I think I know but have not confirmed it
	4 — Yes, I have identified my gift and am exploring it
	5 — Fully clear; I know my gift and am actively developing it
Q2	How consistently do you invest time in developing your talent?
	1 — Never; I do not practise or develop my gift
	2 — Rarely; only when I feel like it
	3 — Sometimes; not yet a consistent habit
	4 — Regularly; I practise and seek to improve
	5 — Daily discipline; I treat my talent as a serious responsibility
Q3	Is the dream you are pursuing your own, or one that others have placed on you?
	1 — I am living someone else's dream entirely
	2 — Mostly others' expectations drive my choices
	3 — A mix of my dream and what others want for me
	4 — Mostly my own dream with some external influence
	5 — Completely my own God-given dream, clearly defined
Q4	Do you have a mentor or coach helping you develop your talent?
	1 — No; I develop alone with no guidance
	2 — I occasionally receive informal advice
	3 — I have some guidance but it is not structured
	4 — I have a mentor and meet regularly
	5 — I have intentional mentorship and a clear development plan
Q5	Do you see your talent as something that can serve others and honour God?
	1 — No; talent is just for personal success

2 — I have not thought about it in that way
3 — I am beginning to see the connection
4 — Yes; I want to use my talent to serve
5 — Absolutely; my talent is a gift from God to be stewarded for His glory

Your Result:
HIGH

You are one of the few who have found their gift and are actively investing in it. Protect this momentum. Seek a mentor, build a plan, and ensure your talent is pointed toward service — not just success.

Next Step:

Write down your top three talents. Choose one to focus on for the next 40 days. Set a daily or weekly practice schedule and share it with your mentor or coach.

● TRAINING & EDUCATION

Score: 12/25

Progress:

12/25

MODERATE

Knowledge is not optional — it is the bridge between where you are and where God is calling you to go. Proverbs consistently honours the pursuit of wisdom and warns against foolishness. This domain explores whether you are on the right educational track for your calling, whether your training is aligned with your talent, and whether you are making informed decisions about your future — or simply following the crowd.

Assessment Questions

Q1	How clear are you about the education or training path right for your calling?
	1 — Completely lost; I have no idea what to study or train for
	2 — Vague; I am following what my peers are doing
	3 — Some direction but not fully committed
	4 — Clear direction and on a purposeful path
	5 — Fully aligned; my training is tailored to my calling and gifts
Q2	How engaged and disciplined are you in your current studies or training?
	1 — Disengaged; I rarely attend or put in effort
	2 — Inconsistent; effort varies widely
	3 — Moderate; I attend but am not fully committed
	4 — Engaged and consistent most of the time
	5 — Fully committed; I pursue excellence in all I study
Q3	Have you made educational decisions based on your own passion or others' pressure?
	1 — Entirely others' pressure; I have no ownership
	2 — Mostly external; I feel trapped in the wrong track
	3 — Some of both; I am figuring it out
	4 — Mostly my own choice with good advice
	5 — Completely intentional; I chose this path with prayer and counsel
Q4	Do you understand the connection between training, talent, and long-term purpose?
	1 — No; I just study what is available or expected
	2 — Slightly; I have not thought deeply about the connection
	3 — Beginning to understand; I am making connections
	4 — Good understanding and applying it to my choices
	5 — Fully integrated; training, talent, and purpose are aligned
Q5	Are you developing skills beyond formal education (leadership, communication, trade skills)?

1 — No; I only focus on formal schooling
2 — Rarely; I have not thought about it
3 — Occasionally; I pick up skills here and there
4 — Regularly; I invest in skills development outside school
5 — Actively; I have a development plan beyond formal education

Your Result:
MODERATE

You are engaged in learning but the direction may not yet be fully aligned with your calling. Start having honest conversations with mentors about whether your current track serves your future.

Next Step:

List all your current studies and training. For each one, write down: 'Does this connect to my calling?' If not, speak with a mentor about redirecting your energy to what matters most.

● SERVICE

Score: 10/25

Progress:

10/25

LOW

Jesus said, 'I came not to be served, but to serve.' Service is not for a selected few — it is the mark of true greatness. At 13–17, developing a service mindset breaks selfishness, builds empathy, and gives life meaning beyond personal success. This domain explores how much you are oriented outward — giving your time, skills, and resources to make a difference in others' lives, even in small ways.

Assessment Questions

Q1	How regularly do you serve others in your home, school, or community?
	1 — Never; I do not think about serving others
	2 — Rarely; only when required
	3 — Occasionally; when I feel like it
	4 — Regularly; it is becoming a habit
	5 — Consistently; service is a core part of my life
Q2	Do you give part of your time or resources to help people in need?
	1 — No; I have nothing to give and do not think about it
	2 — Rarely; I keep most things for myself
	3 — Sometimes; if it is convenient
	4 — Often; I budget time and resources to give
	5 — Always; generosity is a lifestyle, not an event
Q3	Do you feel a sense of fulfillment when you help others?
	1 — No; I feel nothing or resent being asked
	2 — Rarely; service feels like a burden
	3 — Sometimes; in the right situation it feels good
	4 — Usually; I enjoy helping and feel purpose in it
	5 — Always; serving others gives me deep joy and meaning
Q4	Do you see your future career or calling as something that will serve others?
	1 — No; I want to succeed for myself
	2 — Not really; I have not thought about others in my career plans
	3 — Somewhat; I want to succeed and then help others
	4 — Yes; serving others is part of my professional vision
	5 — Absolutely; everything I am building is designed to serve and give
Q5	Are you involved in any form of volunteering, peer support, or community contribution?

1 — No involvement at all
2 — Very minimal or one-off
3 — Occasional involvement
4 — Regular involvement in a structured way
5 — Actively leading or organising service in my community

Your Result:
LOW

Your service orientation is still developing. This is an invitation, not a judgement. The greatest leaders in history were defined by who they served. Begin small — help one person this week without expecting anything in return.

Next Step:

Choose one person, family, or community need you can serve this week. Do it without being asked and without telling anyone. Journal how it makes you feel. Repeat every week for 40 days.

Personal Transformation Dashboard

This dashboard provides a complete overview of your 7 Areas of Transformation scores. It is designed to give you and your coach an immediate picture of where you are thriving and where focused development is needed. No area is without hope — every score is a starting point, not a verdict.

The Gap — Where You Are Going

The purpose of every great assessment is not to show you your failures — it is to show you the gap between where you are and where you could be. God has a specific calling and purpose for your life. This page identifies the three most critical areas requiring your focused attention over the next 40 days, and the support structure that will help you close the gap.

Priority Focus Areas (Lowest Scores)

1.● Service — Score: 10/25 | Gap: 15 points

Choose one person, family, or community need you can serve this week. Do it without being asked and without telling anyone. Journal how it makes you feel. Repeat every week for 40 days.

2.● Finance — Score: 11/25 | Gap: 14 points

Start a simple notebook or app to record every rupee that comes in and goes out for 30 days. Identify one financial habit in your family that you want to change and commit to living differently.

3.● Training & Education — Score: 12/25 | Gap: 13 points

List all your current studies and training. For each one, write down: 'Does this connect to my calling?' If not, speak with a mentor about redirecting your energy to what matters most.

Your Key Strengths to Build On

● Spirituality (Score: 16/25 — MODERATE) — This is your platform for growth. Use this strength to serve others and anchor your journey.

● Talent (Score: 18/25 — HIGH) — This is your platform for growth. Use this strength to serve others and anchor your journey.

Your 40-Day Commitment

The 40-Day Transformation Journey is your opportunity to close the gap. You will be assigned a coach or mentor who will walk with you through weekly check-ins, targeted development plans, and practical accountability. By the end of 40 days, you will re-take this assessment and see the distance you have travelled. Every area can grow. Every score can improve. The question is: will you commit?
